

Industry-leading database of market data policies and pricing managed by a dedicated team of industry experts.

PEAR, is the culmination of many years' experience within the market data industry, writing exchange policy, managing audits and developing technology products for this sector.

Standardised terms

PEAR applies a standard structure and terms across global exchange policies reducing complexity and risk from different interpretations and simplifying comparisons across exchanges and products. Providing clarity in areas of policy such as Non-Display, Derived Data and Unit of Count.

Centralised announcements

PEAR'S centralised system provides clients with the ability to refine exchange announcements based on a list of varying criteria from the date applicable to the policies specifically affected.

Powerful search

The advanced Search functionally allows users to pinpoint the single piece of information that they require, or compare polices and pricing from multiple exchanges within the same interface.

Core features

Licensing details

PEAR maps products to their associated licences in addition to grouping licence by type i.e. External Redistribution, Non-Display etc.

What If

'What If' is our cost analysis tool, allowing users to determine how much specific datasets and markets would cost to implement.

Licence Picker

This feature allows users to select the licences and products their firm subscribes to, applying a simple colour-coding process to highlight this information throughout the system.

ComPEAR

Ability to perform side by side comparisons of previous and current exchange documents.

Vendor Data Notifications (DNs)

Up-to-date DN's stored in PEAR for customisable queries, personalised workflow and links to associated exchange policies and announcements.

PEAR API

The PEAR API is available as an add-on to the PEAR product which allows programmatic access to the information held in the database for use in other systems and workflows.

The way market data should be managed.

Our technology-enabled market data compliance platform is an industry game-changer.
